Enameled WATER PIPE.

This pipe is enamelled under great heat, both in and out, which gives it a hard jet gloss surface and prevents it from rust or corrosion. B. Dana Hodge, State Assayer and Chemist for the State of Massachusetts says: "I commenced the investigation with some double leaden pipes. Enamelled on the inside. After the severe tests which I have employed I consider it perfectly harmless, and pedestrians of durability, these being the properties of most importance in water pipes."

A supply of this and plain pipe and fittings constantly on hand, and for sale at lowest market rates.

Sufferers with Cancer.

Why do you allow that fearful disease to hasten you to an untimely grave, when by application to S. W. Tibbetts & Son, of Biddeford, Maine, you can have it removed without the use of knife or caustic. Scores are already rejoicing in their escape from the very jaws of death by virtue of their treatment, which is by application of a plaster. If you do not find our statement made in answer for your self, Hon. Mary Dexter, Palermo; Rev. John Fay, Litchfield, Me.; Gilbert Whitten, Burnham, Me; C. W. Shields, Chester, Me.; Asa Warren, Newburg, Me.; Mrs. Sarah D. Hodges, Fairfield, Me.; Rhoda Rollins, Hallowell, Me.; Mrs. Mary A. Wilson, Princeton, Me.; Horton & Co., Bangor, Me.; Mrs. Augustus J. Bicknell, Bath, Me. These and many more than thirty others whose names will be given if desired, have been cured within the past year. In ten cases the cancers have varied from twenty to thirty inches in circumference. The case of Mrs. Bicknell of Bath was remarkable in its size twenty five inches in circumference) and in its abhorrence to be bared from its disappearance. For further information apply to S. W. STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

All the Lewiston mills were greatly troubled Friday by machine ice. Two or three were obliged to shut down for a time. So much trouble has not been experienced before for two years.

On Wednesday, Keith charged with wilful poisoning in Leeds, was bound over in the sum of $4,000, failing to procure which he was committed to jail.

The Androscoggin is getting locked up in ice. Friday in some places it was frozen nearly over.

Cumberland.

Corporal Blair and private Kimball, of the Portland Mechanic Blues, have gone to New York to select samples for a uniform for the company.

Franklin.

A foot and a half of snow is reported in the Dead River region.

The Chronicle learns that it is quite sickly in the Northern part of Franklin county.

The Chronicle says that the total number of depositors in Farmington savings bank is 1,612; increase the past year, 59; increase in deposits the past year, $20,963.30; interest paid depositors the past year, $12,739.-83; State tax paid the past year, $2,165.83; dividend declared October, 1875, $6,651.00. This bank has no railroad bonds which are worthless—all are worth their face value, and can be sold for far more than was paid for them.

Kennebec.

The Journal says that there has been considerable interest in Gardiner, recently, over a case somewhat resembling Guiteau's. A young man belonging to a Roman Catholic family in that city committed suicide in California, some time since, and his body was sent home for burial. The priest was applied to administer the rights of the church, but he refused to do so, and also to allow the body to be buried in consecrated ground. Instead of applying to the courts, however, the family immediately left the Catholics and joined the Episcopal church, and the body was buried by the rector of the Episcopal church.

Abner Jewett of Augusta, who was injured in the side, a short time since, at Mosher's mill, is suffering from his injuries, and it is extremely doubtful if he recovers.

Knox.

Diphtheria is prevailing at No. Haven, and several children have died.

Carvers' Harbor, according to the Belfast Journal, has its ghostly story. In the fall of 1830, the steamer Royal Tar was burned in the Eastern bay between the Fox Islands and Isle au Haut. A large number of passengers were on board, when she took fire. There was also a caravan of living animals on board. It is reported by old people that in the fall of every year since, a bright light has been seen on the spot where this ill-fated steamer went down. It is seen on a number of nights in succession. The light is reported to be like a vessel's signal light, and known in full blast.

The Free Press says that a little child of Benj. Boggs of Warren, by some means set his clothes on fire and was so severely burned that he died.

One of the largest pieces of granite ever shipped from Rockport harbor, was put on board the schooner Wanda Lowry, Capt. Spear, last week. It measured 24 feet in length, 12 in width, and 14 in thickness, and weighed 35 tons.

Oxford.

On the evening of Friday, the 12th inst. the dry-house connected with the mill of Hon. John Lynchat Albany, took fire and was partially consumed, with quite a quantity of lumber and a lot of matches. The building and lumber belonged to Mr. French; the other property was owned by the Star Match Co., of Portland.

S. S. Hersey, of Waterford, while chopping wood in the woods, last week, inflicted a severe wound upon the foot with an axe. He started for the house, and, while on the way, fainted three times. When found he was in a very feeble condition, occasioned by the loss of blood and long exposure in the cold, but at present he is doing remarkably well.

A new disease has attacked several people in Porter. It somewhat resembles the diphtheria.

Several deaths have occurred in Canton lately; some from scarlet fever.

The dwelling house and outbuildings occupied by Wm. Crooker, near Locke's Mills, was destroyed by fire Tuesday night of last week. But little furniture was saved. Origin of the fire unknown. Loss about $600.

Five young men of West Chesterville returned to their former homes in East Jay, last week, from California, looking as though they had enjoyed good health.

Waldo.

The Waldo county Lodge of Good Templars at a recent session passed a resolution regretting that the grand jury of the late term of court refused to indict rumsellers on the most positive testimony.

On Saturday, the 6th inst., the barn on the premises owned by Silas Skidmore, and occupied by L. T. Brown, was entirely destroyed by fire, together with sixteen tons of hay, tools, and some live stock.

Judge Thurlough of the Waldo county probate court has resigned.

Washington.

The schools in District No. 1 Lubec are to be taught by Miss Harriet C. King as principal of the High School, with Mr. Elbridge Lamson as assistant, and Miss Lizzie Sumner teacher of the intermediate school. These ladies have rendered most efficient service in these schools for a number of years.

BANGOR MARKET.

SATURDAY, November 20, 1875

FLOUR. The markets during the past week have been about even, the rise just showing no particular change in the figures, though some grades have only occasionally quoted, while others have been mentioned as in fair demand. On the whole, the supply and demand seem quite evenly balanced, and prices steady.

CORN is moving upward a trifle and selling to day from 80 to 82 cents per bushel, the former measure and latter prices weight—56 pounds.

MEAL. Corn meal is worth from 82 to 85 cents per bushel—56 pounds.

FEED AND MILL. Fine middlings are worth from $17 to $18 per ton; coarse do., $15 to $16; and bran $14 to $15 per hundred pounds.

OATS. Oats are worth from 30 to 35 cents per bushel—32 pounds.

POTATOES. Potatoes is sold at a range of prices from 35 to 40 and 45 cents per bushel, and Bangor Butter sells (56 pound boxes) $21 per hundred.

BARLEY. Barley is worth $1 25 per bbl.

LIME is worth $1.75 to $1.80 per cask.

CEMENT. Cement is worth $1.70 per bbl.

PORK. City and western packed pork is selling from $23 to $24 and $23.00 per bbl.

LARD is worth from 15 to 16 and 17 cents per pound, according to the quality and size of packages.

An Impregnable Position.

Among American remedies, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters occupies what may not inaptly be termed an impregnable position. The foundations of its popularity are laid so deep in the public confidence, its excellence has been so frequently and conclusively demonstrated under the most trying circumstances, and it has been so long known to the public as a standard article, that neither its aliases or counterfeits can stop its progress. Both may for the attempts of certain trade-lists nostrum vend ers to create a people's need where it apparently has not existed. The public recognizes it as a safe, agreeable and comprehensive medicinal corrective, invaluable in cases of dyspepsia, liver complaint, kidney disorders, and their numerous and painful results. Its reputation is founded on a basis which is not to be shaken by the mere opinion of a few.

PASSPORTS TO DEMOCRATIC FAVOR.

The success of the Democrats in gaining control of one branch of the National Congress is not only affording the people an opportunity to discover the kind of men who are put forward in that party as the exponents and champions of its peculiar style of Reform, but considerable light is also thrown upon the ruling influence in that organization by the character of the claims for party recognition put forward by aspirants for place under the new regime. We all know that for a number of years past the Democrats have been exceedingly anxious in every political contest that those "dead issues" relating to the war so disagreeable to them, should be entirely ignored but it is a curious fact that while any reference to or recognition of the patriotism of those who fought to preserve the Union is deprecated as tending to fan the embers of sectional animosity the Democratic party has conspicuously sought to bestow all its political favors upon active participants in the Rebellion or their allies in the North who were most offensive in their disloyalty to the Union. The list of Democratic members in the next Congress furnishes lamentable evidence of this fact in the long roll of ex-Confederate Generals, Colonels and civil officers who make up the Southern reinforcement of the secession-sympathizers and reactionists sent to Congress by the Democrats of the North.

They want "dead issues" buried only so far as to silence all praise of those who saved the Union while now, as it has been for the past ten years, the test applied to Democratic candidates for office is military service in aid of the conspiracy to overthrow the Government of the United States or openly expressed sympathy with that treasonable effort. None are more keen in their appreciation of the sentiments and spirit which underlie the action of a political party than those who seek preferment at its hands, and while devotion to the Lost Cause has been successfully invoked in the South by aspirants for both branches of Congress and other public stations the bitter and virulent disloyalists of the North have appealed with equal success for reward at the hands of a sympathizing party. This is not a highly colored or prejudiced statement, as the past and current events of our National politics furnish constant and unequivocal proof that a record of more or less pronounced disloyalty during the struggle for National existence has proved the surest passport to Democratic favor.

Take the situation of to-day.—After being kept in a minority for many years during which its members have been loudly proclaiming the reform which would characterize their return to power the Democrats have obtained a large majority in the National House of Representatives and are about to show what manner of statesmen they will call to the work of purification and regeneration. Already the choice for the highest and most important office in the gift of the party—that of the Speakership—has been narrowed down to three persons. If the people judged the Democratic party by its professions and not by its record they would be justified in expecting that candidates for this most responsible station would be selected from among men who have not been entangled with dead issues, whose record is spotlessly stainless and whose soundness on the great issues of the day is unquestionable. As a matter of fact we find that the national leadership of the party is conceded to rest between FERNANDO WOOD, SAMUEL RANDALL and MICHAEL C. KERR, with the chances against the latter simply because he has been less conspicuously disloyal than the others. Here are the men the first of whom gained political notoriety by expressing sympathy with rebels while Mayor of New York in 1861, both Wood and Randall bore leading parts in pushing through the "salary grab" and all three of them are "shaky" on the great financial question of the day. Their passports to Democratic favor are based on a distinguished service to the country but solely upon an unquestioning adherence to the Democratic party when its political organization was arrayed against the government and giving aid and comfort to the armed enemies of the Union. Democrats do not like to have the Republicans point with pride to the record of past achievements in the cause of patriotism and human rights but Fernando Wood and Sam Randall point with confidence of recognition by the party to their steadfast opposition at every stage of the national progress during the war.

The working out of the results attendant upon the emancipation of four millions of persons previously held in bondage is undoubtedly one of the most serious matters with which the politics of this country will have to deal in the immediate future. During the campaign of 1872 we were told and the claim has been frequently reiterated that the Democratic party is the truest friend of the freedmen and yet we find on the first accession of that party to power in Congress that its leading candidates for Speaker are two men who protested and voted to the last against the abolition of Slavery. In the last annual message of President Lincoln, delivered to the XXXVIIIth Congress in December 1864 he reaffirmed the position taken in his famous Emancipation Proclamation of Jan 1 1863 with these noble and memorable words:

"If the people should by whatever mode or means, make it an Executive duty to re-enslave such persons, another, and not I must be their instrument to perform it."

On the 8th of April the XIIIth Constitutional Amendment, forever abolishing Slavery had been adopted by the required two-thirds vote in the Senate only Democrats opposing and only two Democrats voting in its favor, but it failed afterwards in the House with 93 in favor and 66 Democrats opposing. On the 6th of January, 1865, the question was brought up on a motion to reconsider, and finally, after much debate the motion was carried and the vote adopting the great Amendment was taken January 31st. On the records of Congress the State of Maine heads the roll-call of both the yeas and nays, the name of ex-Speaker Blaine leading the Republican column of yeas, while that of Sweat, the single Democratic Representative from this State, stands first among the "56 nays, all Democrats." In that list of Democrats opposing the abolition of Slavery so late as 1865, appear the names of Fernando Wood and Samuel J. Randall, and it is precisely to that and kindred votes that they appeal to-day for election by their party to the most influential position in Congress. It is also a significant fact that of the 2 Democratic members of the Senate and of the House who dared to vote for the abolition of Slavery in 1865, not one has been continued in Congress, nor does one of them hold any position of prominence in the gift of the Democratic party to-day.

We have before remarked that office-seekers have a keen scent for the peculiarities of those from whom they seek favor, and it is not surprising to find applicants for positions in the new organization of the House, "pointing with pride" to their opposition to the war for the Union. One of these is Benjamin G. Harris, an ex-member of Congress from Maryland, who, on the 8th of April, of 1864, received a vote of censure by the House for a grossly disloyal speech, only escaping expulsion by the rallying of Democrats to prevent a full two-thirds vote, who was subsequently tried by court martial in Maryland for violation of the articles of war, and who now appeals to this record in support of his candidacy for the post of Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Representatives from which he was so nearly expelled. A Washington special states that this patriot has sent a circular to each Democratic member of the next Congress, in which he makes the following conclusive presentation of his claims to Democratic consideration:

"The place will relieve the want to the verge of which I have been brought by the proceedings of the National Administrations which have ruled this country for the last fifteen years. When in Congress, I felt it my duty to vote against any bill for the raising of forces, in every bill for the appropriation of money TO CARRY ON THE WAR and had the glory of receiving the censure of the radicals of the House for uttering in a speech the following prayer: 'God Almighty grant you may never subjugate the South.' MY GREATEST REGRET IS THAT GOD DID NOT GRANT MY PRAYER."

If the Democrats of the next Congress can resist that appeal, what will move them? Mr. Harris has been there himself and doubtless knows his men, and that is the way "dead issues" are to be buried by the Reform Democracy! After Harris is installed as Sergeant-at-Arms it will certainly be in order for Emery and Pillsbury to "point" respectively to the destruction of the Democrat and the Kingfield draft riots as warranting their appointments as Pension Agents—that is if the Democratic majority should deem it proper to continue any national bounty for services in carrying on AN UNHOLY WAR.

Col W. M. Grosvenor who was prominent in the Greeley movement in 1872 was charged by one of the witnesses at St Louis a day or two since with having received a bribe of $1 000 while editor of the Democrat from Joyce who has just been sent to the penitentiary for complicity in the whiskey frauds. Col Grosvenor publishes a card in the Tribune denying that he ever received $1 000 from any member of the whiskey ring but says he borrowed $500 from Joyce on his note in 1874 and intends to pay it. He adds that Joyce knows that he was constantly seeking proof against the ring. A despatch from St Louis also gives a card published by McGrue the principal witness stating that neither Gen Babcock, Orville Grant, nor any other Washington official except Avery had been known by him to have any direct or indirect connection with the ring. Col Grosvenor will have the full benefit of his explanation but is noticeable that the independent journals which were so ready to trace fraud to the White House on mere rumor have been very quiet over the implication of a prominent Liberal. If that transaction of $500 had been fastened upon Babcock the now reticent papers would have foamed with excitement. It is always well to credit a man with innocence until there is evidence of guilt.

CONSOLIDATION OF INTERNAL REVENUE DISTRICTS. In pursuance of the policy of reducing the expenses of the Internal Revenue service as rapidly as the public interests will permit, in accordance with the reduction of the volume of business caused by the removal of special taxes the offices of Assessors were abolished, and the collection districts have now been consolidated by a reduction of one fourth the number, with an estimated annual saving of $250 000. In Maine the 1st 3d and 5d districts are to be merged here after in the 1st, with Franklin J Rollins, of Portland continued as Collector, and the 4th and 5th will hereafter be known as the 4th district with Hiram Ruggles, Collector, headquarters at Bangor. This action vacates the Collectorships heretofore held by Gov.-elect Connor, Hon C J Talbot of East Wilton and A F Drinkwater, Esq of Ellsworth.

Some time ago the Commercial published a letter from Senator Bayard to Marcellus Emery Esq. Since that time the above-named paper has joined hands with the Cincinnati Enquirer for inflation and this is the way the latter denounces Bayard for writing a letter in favor of honest money:

If Bayard were to attempt to utter the sentiments of his infamous letter in the West or Southwest before a Democratic public meeting he would be hissed from the stand as a Republican enemy in the interest of the Money-Power.

THE STATE SENATE. On a careful examination, for the second time of the votes thrown in York county it is found that there is no choice of third Senator in that county Hon Uranus O Brackett of Berwick failing of an election. Mr Brackett will probably be chosen by the Legislature. In Hancock, George Tolman of Deer Isle (Democrat), is chosen Senator instead of William A H Heath, who was thought at one time to be elected.

HETEROPHEMY. In the December number of the Galaxy, Mr Richard Grant White coins another word, "Cynicasterism, which he applies to that sort of sneering and carping which does not attain to the dignity of cynicism." He retorts most effectively upon sundry critics who seized eagerly upon what they thought a display of ignorance of Scriptural lore in his former article, and again demonstrates that he is a dangerous man to grapple with in the critical arena. In the course of the present article he cites the following illustration, which will be familiar to our readers, as a striking example of what was described in his November essay under the title at the head of this paragraph:

"The essence of heterophemy is thinking one thing and saying another. Of this one of my correspondents, the editor of a newspaper of standing in New England, sends me a singular and interesting example. Writing an article upon my article, he had occasion to mention the occasion of the latter, my heterophemism, '2 gills one pint.' The result appears in the concluding paragraph of his article, which here follows:

Perhaps the best illustration which we can give that there is something in Mr White's theory will be the simple statement that in writing this very paragraph, on looking back after ten or twelve lines had been written, we were somewhat astonished and amused to find that we had written the quotation thus: 'that two pints make one gill.' We certainly never thought a gill measure would bear such a strain and we submit the case as another example of what Mr. White has named 'Heterophemy.'

"He sends me a corrected proof of the article, and with it the manuscript as it was originally written; and there it is as plain and clear as the type on this page, 'two pints make one gill.' This is a very perfect and striking instance of heterophemy; and, as in my own case, it will be seen that the error of judgment had no connection whatever with ignorance or forgetfulness, or even the most momentary nature, and with a matter which had nothing to do with the character of our metrical system, or want of system, and was not to be helped by the introduction of a decimal system."

THE SPEAKERSHIP

[From the Boston Journal, Nov 17]

Since expressing our views—which seem to be in harmony with the general tone of Republican opinion now being uttered—upon this subject, we observe that the assistant Democratic organs continue to manifest a very lively interest as to what the Republican representatives shall or shall not do. The Springfield Republican, for instance, alleges that one reason why the Republican members should go over to the support of Mr. Kerr, rather than that the hard money Democrats of the House should cast their votes for Mr. Blaine, is that "Mr Blaine is not a representative and aggressive hard money man." His financial views, we are told, are not unlikely to be sound, "but he has kept them to himself this summer. His voice has not been heard on the right side." Now we are surprised—once more—at the ignorance of our Springfield brother. During the brief interval between the Maine and the Ohio elections Mr Blaine was invited to take the stump in the latter State. He was unable to go, but in his letter stating the fact he made the following explicit declaration of his views, which was published generally in the press at the time viz:

In your struggle for honest money and against the spirit of repudiation I cannot doubt that you will be victorious. No State in the Union has a more enlightened population than Ohio, and it seems altogether incredible that the mass of your intelligent voters can be misled by the advocates of a perpetually irredeemable paper currency.

No hard money Democrat therefore, need have any hesitation about voting for Mr. Blaine on the ground that he is not sufficiently sound, or not sufficiently on record, on the hard money question—especially if such Democrat is satisfied with Mr. Kerr, who, in one of his speeches when he was last running for Congress, is said to have declared that he was in favor of paying the five-twenties with greenbacks, that he was not in favor of an early resumption of specie payments, being doubtful whether it could be attempted in ten years, and that the accusation that he wanted to contract the currency was "a great, big, able-bodied lie."

If any Democratic member of the next House, then declines to give his vote to Mr Blaine, in order that he may throw it for Mr Kerr, it certainly cannot be because the former is any less explicit or reliable on the hard money issue than the latter. Here the New York Tribune comes in with a new reason why, not only the Democrats should adhere to their own men, but the Republicans "would be entirely wise" in voting for some hard money Democrat for Speaker. It is as follows:

"The Democrats have a majority of the House, the organization belongs of right to them; let them have it, and with it the responsibility of legislation."

That is precisely what we have already said. It is a species of interference for the Republican members to have anything whatever to do with the Democratic candidate or candidates. If the Democratic force in the House cannot act as a unit, what right have the Republicans to avail themselves of a split in order to coalesce with the minority faction put in a Speaker who will subvert the just political state of affairs by representing neither the Democratic party of the House nor of the country, and who must labor under the alternative of continuing, by his appointments, an utterly unnatural coalition, or else of deserting substantially to the soft money majority of the Democratic side? We don't say that the situation would be rendered any more enviable by the hard money Democrats casting their votes for Mr. Blaine even if they could do it in sufficient numbers to elect him. That however, is something for Democrats to consider. We are expressing the feeling of Republicans, and we say that if there is to be a union of different party men upon either Mr Blaine or Mr Kerr for the Speakership Mr. Blaine is the man, because he is immeasurably superior in all the qualifications for the office, as well as sounder on the finances and because there is no sense in asking the man to go over the few.

We are obliged to assume that the real, sincere hard money Democrats in the next House of Representatives will be very few. Where are they? They are not particularly evident in this canvass for the Speakership, so far as it has yet progressed. Mr. Kerr's strength is exceedingly shadowy. His friends evidently are none of the thorough-going "thick-and thin, till-the-last-gasp kind. Even the Tribune quoted above confesses that it has seen too much of Democratic politicians to believe that any of them will bolt a caucus nomination for Speaker though the nominee should be an outspoken Inflationist." Under these circumstances the Republicans of the next House will pursue their customary straight-forward course, without troubling themselves with any complications on the other side. We have assumed that Mr Blaine would be their candidate for Speaker, but however that may be, they will do nothing, which will hamper the efficiency of Mr Blaine and his able Republican associates on the floor of the House, so as to prevent them from waging a contest whose victory will come in due season.

[From the same Nov 20.]

The misrepresentations of the Springfield Republican have induced us to look up some past records in Congress. Mr Kerr we find was eight years in the House, from 1865 to 1873, and he never gave a vote that was not on the soft money or inflation side of the financial question. Mr Blaine during the same eight years never gave a vote except for honest money. In 1867 Mr Blaine was the first member in either House that attacked the Pendleton heresy of paying the national debt in greenbacks. Mr Kerr at the same time was sustaining that financial fraud with all his strength. Mr Blaine has been in Congress from the very beginning of the financial discussion, and he never gave a vote or made a speech that his hard money friends could desire to have changed or modified. Mr. Kerr during his whole service in the House never made a speech or gave a vote that a hard money man could approve. And yet the Springfield Republican has the impudence to intimate that Mr. Kerr's financial record is as good as that so consistently maintained by Mr Blaine.

The suggestion that the Republicans in Congress should abandon their organization to support a man of Mr. Kerr's record is a piece of insolence that never could come from any source except the independent press. Kerr's record in Congress on the finances is precisely the same as Randall's, and if the New York Tribune and Springfield Republican will point out to us a single issue on which Kerr's vote was better than Randall's, we shall be obliged to them. They are both as bad as the circumstances would allow, and the records of Fernando Wood and Sam Cox are no better. The Republicans in Congress could not possibly make anything [illegible] by giving any one of these the preference over the others. There is small choice among a certain kind of apples.

The intimation of the Republican that Mr Blaine has kept quiet on the financial question during the late campaign is also groundless. We have in a former article quoted his letter to the Ohio Committee. It may be well also to recall that during the canvass in Maine Mr. Blaine was frequently on the stump advocating specie resumption, and that he made a formal speech on the question at Portland on the 9th of September, which was widely printed the next morning. Possibly the Republican declined to publish it, and now takes its refusal as evidence that Mr. Blaine never made the speech. That mode of reasoning is about up to the logical and moral level of that paper.

Burning of the Ship John Pascal.

The Captain's Account.

Efforts to Save her Unavailing.

The Captain's Account of the Burning of the Ship.

BOSTON Nov 20. Spoken Nov. 3d, lat. 22 30, lon. 60 08', schooner Hector, from Bangor for Trinidad. The ship Victoria arrived here to-day from Calcutta, and brought in the officers and crew of the ship John Pascal, of Bangor, Me., which was destroyed by fire on the passage from Calcutta to New York. A portion of her crew has been previously reported as arriving at Plymouth, Eng., and their statement is fully corroborated by that of Capt. Tapley, the master. He reports that she left Calcutta July 17. Nothing unusual took place till Aug 28, 42 days out, when at midnight we were alarmed by smoke coming from the half-deck hatch. We commenced at once to break out cargo and took on deck some 300 bags of rubber. Soon after we found smoke issuing from the fore hatch, got the force-pump started, lifted the hatch and soon extinguished the fire. It was confined in some bags of linseed under the hatch. We then broke out cargo down to the lower deck and threw overboard all that was damaged. We continued to work till all appeared dry and cool. We examined the cargo in different parts of the ship from time to time [illegible] find no sign of fire. Soon after we came into cold and rough weather. We were off the Cape of Good Hope, in [illegible] with strong northwest gales, but after passing the Cape we soon got into fine weather. We now had little or no fear of [illegible] as the cargo in all parts of the ship was cold and dry.

Sept. 28, or 30 days after the first, we were again alarmed by smoke coming from the fore hatch. The fire was so far abaft the hatch it could not be reached by the force-pump. The ship was so thoroughly ventilated that the flames spread rapidly. We then, as soon as possible, stopped all ventilation, fore and aft, cut holes in the deck and poured down water; also got a stream from the engine and led the hose from the escape pipe through the deck, hoping to stifle the fire, but without success. We now altered our course for St Helena, 280 miles distant. It now became [illegible] that it was impossible to save the ship. We then made preparations to leave in the boats when we could not stay by the ship any longer. At 8 A. M. we saw a ship and at 12 M attracted her attention when she steered for us. It proved to be the ship Victoria, Capt. Atwood, from Calcutta to Boston, who kindly sent his boat to our assistance. At this time the fire had driven us from forward, and we had barely time to leave before the fire was bursting out in different parts of the ship. By the time we were safely on board the Victoria the John Pascal was one sheet of flame. Everything that could be done by those on board to save the ship was done up to the very last moment.

FROM WATERVILLE.

Fatally Injured.

WATERVILLE, Nov. 20. Wm. Haynes of this place, brakeman on a special freight on the Maine Central railroad, who was struck by an over-head bridge at Belgrade yesterday afternoon died here last evening at nine o'clock.

Failed to Agree.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 21. In the United States court in the case of the United States vs Diemer, the jury failed to agree. Diemer, with others were indicted on the charge of conspiring to defraud the United States of the tax on 80,000 gallons of spirits.

NEW YORK CITY.

Revival Meetings.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. Mr. Beecher told his church last night that an attempt to carry on great meetings of revival at the Rink, now that Moody has gone, would be a mistake, but hoped that the different churches would exert themselves in their own way to convert sinners. There was a great silence of the Brooklyn tabernacle this forenoon, many people not being aware that Moody and Sankey had taken their departure. Services were conducted by Mr. Needham.

The Conant Assignment.

The assignment of Claudius B. Conant to Mr. Marston was filed in the Common Pleas to-day. Liabilities $119,986; net assets $79,049.

Absconded.

Charles B. Orris and Dexter A. Reed, two dealers in hard woods, have absconded leaving debts aggregating from $75,000 to $100,000. It is believed they have fled to San Francisco.

KENTUCKY.

The United States vs. O. H. Burbridge et. al.

LOUISVILLE Nov. 20. The case of the United States against O. H. Burbridge et. al., was called in court yesterday and a verdict rendered by the jury. The case has been in court since April 1st, 1868. Shortly after the war O. H. Burbridge was appointed Special Supervising Agent of the Treasury Department, with headquarters at New Orleans. It was alleged by the Government that while in office he sold cotton belonging to the Government, amounting in value to $45,000, which he had never accounted for, thereby failing to properly fulfil the duties of the office and violating the requirements of his bond, which had been fixed at $25,000. His sureties were sued with him. Some are dead and some are said to be worth nothing. Only one, Mr. John H. Jackson, now of San Francisco, was actively prosecuted with Burbridge. The jury rendered a verdict against Burbridge for $35,000.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Murder and Suicide.

ERIE, Nov. 20. Domestic troubles caused Jacob Wurmleyon to shoot his eldest daughter yesterday and then blow his own head off.

LOSSES BY FIRE.

DETROIT, Nov. 20. The large saw mill of Reynolds & Kinlaw at Grand Haven, was destroyed by fire last evening. Loss about $50,000; insurance $20,000.

KEENE, Nov. 20. Two large wooden shops on Beaver Brook, in the north part of the city, owned by Martin G. Woodbury and used for the manufacture of pine furniture and coffins, were burned with their contents at 3 o'clock this morning. Loss, $10,000; insured. Probably incendiary.

MILFORD, Nov. 20. D. W. Batchelor's barn in West Upton was burned last night with $500 worth of hay and grain. Supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

QUINCY, ILL., Nov. 20. A fire last night destroyed four buildings occupied as warehouses by Schemerhorn Bros. Loss $50,000; insurance $18,000.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. McKenzie's factory in Union City, Indiana, was burned this morning. Loss $20,000. Reynold's saw mill at Grand Haven, Mich., was burned last night. Loss $50,000; insured $20,000.

LACONIA, N. H., Nov. 20. The Avery building on Main Street, which was partially burned a year and a half ago, and again fired last Sunday, was burned to the ground this morning. The property was owned by the heirs of the late Hon. Lyman B. Walker. No insurance.

TEXAS.

Mexican Troops Concentrating in Front of Major Alexander.

GALVESTON, Nov. 20. The following has been received from San Antonio, Texas: Maj. Alexander has arrived at Los Cuevos, and reports that forty men of the Eighth Cavalry crossed this morning before his arrival by Randlett's order. Maj. Clendenning having left for Ringgold to support McNally, who was driven by Mexicans to the river. This was done in violation of orders by me yesterday morning. I have directed Maj. Alexander to return the troops to the north bank, and he has answered that it will be done immediately. I have carried out your order of instructions in regard to the surrendering of thieves and returning of property. Maj. Alexander reports that a large number of troops are concentrating in front of him.

Signed, POTTER, Commanding.

The Mexicans May Assume the Offensive.

It is by no means impossible that the Mexicans may take the offensive. Los Cuevos is a notorious den of Cortina and his robbers. Not less than 1000 of them could be assembled there on short notice.

McNally Returns Safely.

GALVESTON, Nov. 21. Advices received up to a late hour last night from the commanding officer of the U. S. forces in front of Los Cuevos report that Capt. McNally has recrossed to the American side of the river with his command all safe.

WASHINGTON.

The Mint.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. The annual report of the Director of the Mint shows a coinage of gold at $33,553,965; silver, $10,070,368; minor pieces, $230,375; total, $43,854,708. The deposits were as follows: Gold, $38,550,203; silver, $16,070,626. Additional vaults are required in the Treasury offices in various parts of the country for storage of silver coin in view of the contemplated resumption of specie payments. In addition assaying facilities to the New Orleans Mint are suggested. The Director says that the two years' yield of the mines will, it is probable, furnish sufficient silver to manufacture all the fractional currency coin that can be advantageously used in the country. The purchases of silver bullion from January 14th to October 31st, 1875, amounted to $8,549,747, at an average price with a refining charge added for done bullion of 1 dollar, 11 cents and 4 mills per ounce standard.

LOCAL MATTERS.

The usual Thanksgiving services will be held in the churches Thursday morning.

The teachers of the West Bangor Schools have been re-elected by the School Committee.

The wooden covering for the steps of the Custom House was put in place Saturday.

The Supreme Judicial Court meets to-day for a short session, and then will adjourn sine die.

Prof. Barbour has consented to deliver the address at the dedication of the Grammar School building.

The Superintending School Committee are revising the course of study for the new Grammar School's.

A complete summary of the business of the Probate Court for the October term will be found on the first page this morning.

The Cornelius Donnivan mentioned in the Police Court items, in last Saturday's issue, is not the one living on Hancock street.

The rehearsal of the Handel Association occurs this evening. Singing books may be obtained of the Secretary, Mr. W. E. Brown, or at the hall.

Messrs. Nealy, Tewksbury and Walton are making extensive repairs on the brig Abby Ellen, at their yard in this city. They employ a crew of 50 men.

The Sabbath School Anniversary of the Third church was held last evening, and the attendance was unusually large. Rev. Mr. Forsyth, of Bucksport, preached the sermon.

The Holly Company is putting in new machinery at Rockingham, N. Y. The system has been well tried there, and the capacity of their present machinery being too small, they are now [illegible].

The many friends of Mr. C. R. Ham, [illegible]

Mr. [illegible] announces [illegible] sale of tickets for his next entertainment, a new Opera by the Redpath Opera Company, in which Miss Clara B. Nichols, the popular young prima donna, carries the leading part. The new Opera is by Flotow, author of Martha, and has been received with great favor.

The teacher appointed for the Brewer High School is Mr. Horace W. Stewart, and not the teacher of the Spring street School as we stated. Mr. Stewart is a resident of this city, a graduate of Colby University, and formerly a Tutor of Mathematics in that Institution.

J. F. Smith, of Orrington, fell in a fit, at Kelly & Martin's store on the bridge, early Saturday afternoon. In falling he struck the back of his head against a counter, inflicting a slight wound. He fortunately recovered in a short time. He appeared to be a strong and robust young man, and states that he has never had a similar attack.

We clip the following from the Williamsport, Penn., Daily Gazette and Bulletin, in relation to a former resident of this city:

Mr. James F. Dudley, well known as the special agent of the North British and Mercantile insurance company with headquarters in this city, has resigned said position and is now engaged with the old "Aetna, of Hartford," in the same capacity, and will remain here and make Williamsport his headquarters.

THE MISSING MAN. As we have already announced James Collins, a laborer at the dam, has been missing since last Wednesday morning, and was last seen on Exchange street by two of the Police officers. This fact led some to suppose the might have fallen into the stream, and Saturday afternoon a number of men searched the stream in the vicinity of the Railroad bridge. The search was continued yesterday, but without any satisfactory result. Efforts have been made to find the man's whereabouts, but all in vain.

THE NEW GRAMMAR SCHOOLS. The Superintending School Committee have appointed Mr. Burleigh Pease teacher of the new Grammar School on the East side. Miss Fox's room in the select school will be divided into two and be used by the High School. The four remaining rooms, together with the Abbot Square and Prospect street grammar school rooms, will be used to accommodate the school of which Mr. Pease has been appointed Principal. Messrs. Robinson and Pease will have a lady assistant in each of the rooms of the two schools; but will have a general oversight over all, and will deliver lectures from time to time on various topics, to be specified by the committee.

THE FIRE. An alarm of fire was sounded yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. The fire broke out in Carver & Pierce's meat market, at the Wood Stand. The engines were promptly on hand and at work. Three streams were played upon the flames, which were quickly subdued. The fire originated in the back part of the shop in the corner where the desk was sitting. The cause has not yet been explained. The damage to the building and stock will amount to nearly $400. The insurance will probably cover all loss. The fire was discovered by Capt. E. E. Small, who ran to the Hammond street Church; but the sexton expressed his unwillingness to ring the alarm, on account of disturbing the services, and in consequence there was considerable delay in calling out the department.

THE LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL. Messrs. Sprague, Owen & Nash, of the Kennebec Journal have issued announcement of the Legislative Edition of their paper, which will contain full official reports of the proceedings of the Fifty-fifth Legislature. At the opening of the session biographical sketches of each member of the Legislature, compiled by Howard Owen Esq., will be published, and thereafter the proceedings of each day will be reported in full. To those desiring to follow accurately the details of legislation the Journal will be found indispensable, while all interested in the proceedings at Augusta will find it a source of reliable information. In addition to the daily reports, the current news matter will be published as usual. Terms: 1 copy to one address during the session, $2.00; 5 copies $8.75; 10 copies $15.00. Persons raising clubs before the 6th day of January will be furnished with extra copies.

A KINDERGARTEN. We have recently alluded on several occasions to the Kindergarten system of training for young children which is becoming so popular in different parts of the country, and many of our lady readers have taken considerable interest in the subject. A school, or perhaps we might better term it a training nursery, of this kind, for young children, in which recreation and the early stages of instruction are pleasantly combined, has recently been opened on Harlow street, by Miss Annie Arnold, a lady admirably adapted for its management and devoted in her attention to the little ones placed in her care. They are permitted to bring their toys and the teacher assumes a maternal responsibility for their comfort and welfare during the hours of attendance. It affords an opportunity for young children to associate under a kindly and judicious supervision, and provides a safe and instructive resort during a portion of the day for those too young to attend the regular schools, while relieving mothers of a part of their care. We hope the Kindergarten may prove very successful.

TEMPERANCE MEETING. The public meeting of the Reform Club, yesterday afternoon, was again crowded. Vice-President Richardson presided, and the meeting opened by singing "The morning Light is Breaking." Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Boyd of the Essex street church. The first speaker was Wm Doughty, followed by J. H. Hussey and John Green, all of the club. Mr. Francisco of the Belfast Reform Club also addressed the meeting. Rev. Mr. Boyd then made a few able remarks. Mrs. Works was next introduced, and boldly urged the suppression of the rum traffic. Mr. Nesbit, of Boston, a recently reformed man, then made a few remarks favoring total prohibition. Manuel Mell and J. W. Robinson, Jr., also spoke. Mrs. Crossman, President of the Women's Crusade, closed the list of speakers. She said she attended a meeting at the jail in the morning, where over 60 inmates were confined, and over two-thirds of them were there through the agency of liquor; not one half of them, however, belonged in Bangor. The meeting closed with singing "Nearer my God to Thee." The interest in the meetings is undiminished. Many signed the pledge at the close.

SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENTS. The attendance of parents and friends at the school entertainments, Saturday morning, was very large, and the exercises were very interesting and satisfactory. The following is the list of the scholars who took part in the High School exercises: Declamations and Readings—[illegible]

[illegible] published by the [illegible] class, was also read.

The following are the names of those who participated in the exercises at the Select School: Declamations and Readings—May McSorley, Laura Coombs, Annie Ayer, Grace Hersey, Gracie Marsh, Millie Merrill, Calla Pearson, Frank Hamlin, Lewis Hinkley, Charles Jennings, Willis Hazzard, Charlie Grant, Henry Wharff, and Masters Adams, Taylor and Goodnow. A vocal quartette was nicely rendered by Masters Margesson and Lane and Misses Sewell and Richardson, and a vocal duet was excellently sung by Lillie Treat and Carrie Hodgdon. Miss Ida Washburn sung a very pretty little selection.

The exercises in both schools were very much enjoyed by all present, and were very creditable to the scholars.

Police Court.

Three cases of drunkenness were tried in the Police Court Saturday. Nelson Neddo was sentenced to 90 days with a suspended mittimus, and Joe McGraw received the same sentence. James Madden was sentenced to 30 days with a suspended mittimus.

A SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

A Man Run Over by a Freight Train—The Body Horribly Mangled—The Inquest—Testimony of the Witnesses—A Terrible Warning.

Another sad accident occurred Saturday, only one week from the time of the painful accident which resulted in the death of young Noyes.

Late Saturday forenoon the shifting engine of the E. & N. A. Railway was pushing a number of cars on to the side track which leads to High Head, and as it was a down grade the steam was shut off and the train was dropping down of its own weight: a man was on the top of one the box cars to watch the track and signal distances to the engineer. The first intimation that the engineer had of any trouble was from a man who seemed to be pointing to the rear of the engine, and upon looking out he saw a man's body lying across the track. The train was stopped after it had passed 75 or 90 feet beyond the man. He was immediately laid on a board and carried into Dole & Fogg's mill. Life was nearly extinct as he breathed only a few times.

The unfortunate man was Capt. Jasper A. Roberts of the schooner Aurelia. He was crossing the track to go to his vessel which was lying at the Railroad wharf. It is reported that one man saw him when the train struck him; but it has been impossible to find him since the disaster. The whole train, made up of six cars, engine and tender, must have passed over him, the wheels passing directly over his body, almost completely severing it. There were also several bruises about the head and arms.

The deceased was a resident of South Boston, where he leaves a wife and two children. He was formerly a resident of this city, and married here.

The schooner Aurelia was loaded with potatoes and was nearly ready to sail. An inquest was immediately called with the following gentlemen as jurors: J. H. Wilson, coroner, Eusel Smith, Sylvester Gordon, William Weymouth, Gardner Danforth, Scott Dunbar and Levi Emerson. The first witness called was the engineer, Joseph Page, who testified that the train was going at the rate of about four miles an hour, and that a man walking briskly could keep up with it. The engine bell, he says, had been ringing from the time the train left the exchange street depot. He could not see a man on the track as six cars were in front of him. William Foster, the man who was on top of the box car, testified that he was on the third car from the engine, with three cars ahead of him. His attention was first called to the accident by the stopping of the train. He said he could see on to the track about two or three rods ahead of the forward car. Frank A. Glossteller, fireman of the engine, testifies that he was ringing the bell at the time; was also watching the man on the top of the car; but did not see him make any sign. He states it was the duty of that man to notify the engineer by a sign if anything should be on the track. William Varney, a hackman states that at the time of the accident he was sitting on the freight side of the Maine Central depot. The train was coming towards the depot when he looked up. He had been looking in the direction of the cars, and noticed no one on the track or near there; but turned and looked away, and upon looking back noticed that one car had passed over a man; did not see him when the car struck him. The train could not have gone more than the distance of three cars lengths while he was looking around. John Buckley, a brakeman on the road also testified, but mentioned nothing of particular interest.

The jury adjourned until half past two this afternoon, when a few more witnesses will be examined, and a verdict probably determined upon.

The body of the deceased will be taken to Boston this morning. The accident is a most unfortunate one, and only adds another warning for people to be extremely cautious while crossing Railroad tracks; and it should also impress firmly upon the minds of Railroad employes that they should exercise unceasing vigilance while the trains are moving about in the city.

A despatch from Mr. Atwood, one of the owners of the schooner Aurelia, states that Mrs. Roberts will leave Boston for this city this morning, for the purpose of conveying her husband's remains back to his home. A captain will be sent to take charge of the schooner.

DETENTION OF A MAIL CARRIER.

Hearing Before Commissioner Hamlin.

On Saturday morning G. S. Bean, Esq., of this city, was arraigned before Commissioner Hamlin upon the complaint of J. C. Withee, who alleges that Mr. Bean obstructed and retarded him in this city on Monday, the 15th inst., while he was in the performance of his duty as driver and carrier of the United States mail. The respondent pleaded not guilty, and a hearing was begun. Owing to the absence of Mr. Withee only one witness was examined, Mr. Fred. M. Hopkins, a clerk in the Post Office. He testified that Mr. Withee is employed as driver on the mail route between this city and Belfast, and that on Monday, the 15th inst., at about 6 o'clock, A. M., which is the hour for the departure of the mail to Belfast—Withee came inside of the delivery, where he was met by Mr. Bean, [illegible] [illegible] He [illegible] of the mail was delayed about one hour.

We are also informed that C. N. Hersey, Esq., was present at the examination and stated informally the following facts: That Mr. Withee had been his client in an action against the town of Orrington, and that an execution for costs had issued against Withee, who failed to maintain his suit; and having been arrested by Mr. Bean, who is a Deputy Sheriff, applied to him, as his counsel, to draw up a citation, preparatory to a poor debtor's disclosure, to take place on Thursday following. Mr. Hersey agreed to have his client present at the time fixed for the disclosure, but that no citation was issued therefor. Withee failed to appear at the time appointed for disclosure, and he was on the following Monday taken in custody by Mr. Bean, as before stated, and committed to jail.

The complainant is expected to give his testimony at the hearing which will be resumed this morning at 10 o'clock. Messrs. Wilson and Woodard appeared for the defendant.

BORACINE. A New York periodical of fashion, speaking of the injurious effects of all preparations for the hair containing sulphur lead, oils and glycerine, asks "What shall we do for our hair?" The answer is in a nut-shell—use BORACINE, the new and wonderful specific, acting directly upon the hair follicle, curing at once all scurfs and eruptions of the head, stopping the hair from falling out, producing rapid growth, rendering the hair soft, moist and glossy, and by far the most elegant dressing ever discovered. THE COMEDIAN'S LAST NIGHT

BY EDMUND C. STEDMAN

[The following lines were inspired by the circumstances attending the recent death of George Belmore, the English comedian, who broke down in Boston during an engagement in which he performed the part of the honest jockey "Nat Gosling," in which he had made a great hit in England. He was ill on the first evening in Boston, broke down after the play on the second, and died in a few days.]

Not yet! No, no,—you would not quote
That meanest of the critic's gags!
'Twas surely not of me they wrote
The words, too late the veteran lags.
I'm not so very late with me
I'm not so old as that you know
Though work and trouble—as you see—
(Not years) have brought me somewhat low
I failed you say? No no, not yet!
Or if I did,—with such a past,
Where is the man would have me quit
Without one triumph at the last

But one night more—a little thing
[illegible]—I swear on all I ask
Once more to make the wide house ring—
To tread the boards, to wear the mask
To move the coldest as of yore,
To make them laugh to make them cry
To be—to be myself once more,
And then if must be, let me die!
The prompter's bell! I'm here you see
By Heaven! [illegible] you'll break my heart!
[illegible] be let be—
None but myself shall act the part

Yes thank you, boy, I'll take your chair
Just moment while I catch my breath
[illegible] hear the noise they're making there?
[illegible] warm a player's heart in death
[illegible] Whate'er they write
[illegible] bitter jibe to shame
I knew I knew there turned to night
[illegible] the olden flame!
[illegible] that final round—
[illegible] dies away
The last last time—there's no more sound
[illegible]

[illegible] My senses swim
I shall be better [illegible] anon—
[illegible] when the lights are dim—
[illegible] we must be gone
[illegible] old friends
A little work and fame are ours
While Heaven health and fortune lends
And then—the [illegible] and the flowers
[illegible]
[illegible]
Will dress as [illegible] the part—but I—
I shall not put them on again

THE SECRET OF STAYING MARRIED

[illegible] Robert Collyer in [illegible]

[illegible] a story in which I have tried [illegible] the great secret of staying married [illegible] light that comes by the time one gets round to the silver wedding, as my wife and I did last April. It is about a young man who set out to seek a wife and who found one as all young men do [illegible] and when they were married he knew very little about her and she knew very little about him beyond this that they were both born [illegible] honest stock and raised in a good wholesome way and she had to go home with him and live with that person [illegible] mother in law. And what would come out of it? They had no idea, the [illegible] future was as yet in the shadow except the light of love that was in their hearts and when they came to be alone in the chamber they knelt down and prayed [illegible] prayer Mercifully ordain that we may grow old together

It was one of those weddings for which [illegible] people predict a leisure repentance [illegible] I followed by a brief [illegible]—and then the [illegible] congratulations [illegible] supper which they ate at [illegible] wondering which it could be possible that they were really husband and wife, as the [illegible] said as long as they both should [illegible] quite young they did not know much of the world they had [illegible] and nothing at all of the world they were entering. Could he hold his [illegible] and she as bread [illegible] Could he keep a house over her [illegible] could she make it bright and [illegible] loves to see it when he comes home tired and wants to rest? Would he [illegible] his home or self forget [illegible] gossip or a wife he [illegible] own right hand? [illegible] sunshine break out in his face [illegible] own door and met the [illegible] breaking out on her [illegible] There is [illegible] vast untrodden possibility [illegible] to their silver wedding, there was but one wish in their hearts [illegible] in the spring rests in my own homeland among the wild thyme and there it soars as [illegible] singing into heaven and [illegible] Merciful [illegible] we may grow old together.

[illegible] this most touching cry would be of [illegible] did not stand through all the time [illegible] some things [illegible] together [illegible] that helps [illegible] through long years then voicing it [illegible] felt sure they [illegible] must [illegible] to [illegible] with its bridals and [illegible] with its winters [illegible] the good God to lead them out an even [illegible] together [illegible] work—together than as [illegible] the autumn is to the spring in taking [illegible] until the silver cord was loosed and they were borne away not far apart to the life to come.

[illegible] first in the most outward [illegible] if they did [illegible] that their prayer would [illegible] They might [illegible] as God or [illegible] they might live together [illegible] this day might be for all [illegible] equality in age. If [illegible] men whom we have [illegible] body and soul given to [illegible] while she was one of those women [illegible] take life easy and run no risks [illegible] broken-down old man with a [illegible] while she was still young [illegible] or if he has a secret [illegible] keeping [illegible] water on the [illegible] and a sample-room in the closet or any of the subtle and dangerous devils that are always watching for a chance to drag a man down while she held her life sweet and true then long before their silver wedding he might [illegible] grave or be [illegible] little out of it [illegible] old man in [illegible] the warning finger of [illegible] shoulder [illegible] the bolts of [illegible] that [illegible] care for the [illegible]

[illegible] poor woman's beginning this [illegible] is so many of our girls do without the sturdy womanhood of the open [illegible] bloom on her [illegible] face like [illegible] hot house while [illegible] strong vitality in him of [illegible] by the time she has borne those [illegible] she will have aged two [illegible] for his one. I know if he has a man's heart in his breast he will love her and cherish her all the more for her lost beauty and broken health and some bliss [illegible] may be found in the altered relation which might have come to their perfect equality but I beg to say this is not the question at all. This blended being of the man and woman is first of all a piece of exquisite mechanism ordained of Heaven for a perfect work on earth and it is the very first condition that all the arms of its power should be equal to their design, but when this power fails by our folly on either side the thing in that shape is past praying for. We can only pray then for [illegible] grace the best of it, and thank [illegible] that prayer can always be answered [illegible] I hope when they cried "Mercifully ordain that we may grow old together," this [illegible] outward condition was there in their nature or else they might as well have prayed that the wheels of a watch, one-half steel and the other pewter, might grow old together.

So I tell you, young man, if you are not wholesome clean through, and you young woman if you will not train yourselves to the finest and strictest womanhood possible to your nature, if you will not eat brown bread and work in the garden if you have one with any more grip than a bird scratching quit reading novels in a hot room and devouring sweetmeats, if you dare not face the sun and wind, and try to out walk and out-run your brothers, or let our sweet, wise Mother Nature buckle your belt, you had better not say amen when your stalwart young husband cries "Mercifully ordain that we may grow old together."

I said this is the most outward condition. Reaching inward we find others more serious. These young people have to find each other out, and they may spend a lifetime in doing it. Some find each other out as mariners have sometimes found out the polar seas. They leave the shores of their single life in the spring days with tears and benedictions on them, they sail on awhile in sunshine and fair weather, and then, somehow, they find their way little by little into the cold latitudes, and see the sun sink day by day, and feel the frost creep in and harden them until at least they turn to ice, sitting at the same table and sleeping in the same room. Others again find each other out as in all these years we have been finding out this new world. They settle down at first among the meadow by the spring, then they go through a belt of shadow and lose their way to find it again by and by, and come out into wider spaces and a better land than they left. They meet the rugged hills and climb them together, strike the deserts and cross them together, come to the mountains and scale them together, and then they see the other ocean and reach it together, and so their journey ends. But through shadow and shine they keep together they allow no disaster to divide them, and no third persons not even the mother in law, to interfere.

Sydney Smith says—"Marriage resembles a pair of shears, so jointed that they cannot be separated, moving often in opposite directions, but always punishing any one that comes between them." The remark is as wise as it is witty, and he might have added "Part the shears asunder and then all you have left is two poor daggers." So it is possible that we may grow gray as we find each other out and wonder why we never saw that trait before or struck that temper, but if there is the true heart between us that keeps the rivet in its place the years will be sure to bring new reasons for a more perfect union and the sweet Scotch ballad will be a psalm of life:—

John Anderson my Jo John
We clamb the hill thegither
And mony a canty day, John
We've had wi' ane anither
Now we maun totter down, John
But hand in hand we'll go,
And sleep thegither at the foot,
John Anderson my Jo

But in finding each other out again it is possible that, like my mother's old shears over which I used to ponder when I was a boy one side will be greater than the other. Now what are we to do about that? I found my old friend James Mott, delight [illegible] evening when I went to call because he was walking in his garden [illegible] went by and one said, "That is James Mott," and the other answered "And who is James Mott? Why don't you know? It is Lucretia Mott's husband." Now James Mott was anything but a common man. With a lesser half he would have seemed great, and he was great in a perfect loyalty to truth and goodness but his wife was the woman of a century while he was so noble and great of soul as to be glad and proud of her greatness and at the same time seemed greater for his worship [illegible] few men ever accomplish.

Audubon our peerless naturalist married a good sweet wife and when she began to find him out she found that he would wander off a thousand miles in quest of a bird. She said amen and went with him so long as she had no sacred reason for staying at home, crossed the Alleghanies with him on horseback, camped in the woods lived in log-huts and shanties on the frontier entered into all his enthusiasm, and counted all things but loss for the excellency of the glory of being Audubon's wife. When the children began to come to them he had to wander off alone, but he would not go into the valley so deep or a wilderness so distant that the light would not shine on him out of their window. He knew just where he should find her, and how she would look, for while, as Ruskin reminds the clouds never take the same form again we know the sunshine as we know our most familiar friend and it was sunshine he saw when he looked homeward and so if you have read his notes, you will remember how his heart breaks forth into singing in all sorts of unexpected places as he thinks of his wife and children waiting his return and so they grew old together until they dropped into the lap of God, like mellow fruit. It was hard on him to do this curious wild work. How her woman's heart yearned to have him home we can well imagine, and how gladly she would have sacrificed one of his greatness to keep her children's father at her side but she did not tell him so and now she is changed into the same image from glory to glory as by the Spirit of the Lord.

My story ends before the answer to the prayer is granted. They must be getting on when we leave them for they have six sons but they now wane and so the curtain falls on them forever—but it makes little matter. I know just how it was with [illegible] these safeguards and followed this inspiration that I have tried to teach. When Oberlin was 80 years old and very infirm in climbing one of his mountains he was obliged to lean on the arm of a young man while his wife who was stronger walked by herself. Meeting one of his parish in this the old man felt so awkward at his want of gallantry that he insisted on stopping and explaining how it was and how they each understood it perfectly. She could not lean on his arm, but she leaned on his heart all the same. They had grown old together, and he shot ahead a little, but they must not mistake that; it was all right. So it would be with them in the far away eastern valley. They would keep together and when the arm failed the heart would still abide in the old beautiful strength and grace.

And what did you see? I said eagerly when a friend went from our state on a tour into the Lake country, and on his return told me he had been to Wordsworth's home. I saw the grand old man he said walking in his garden with his wife. Very old he was—nearly blind, the people told me—but they seemed like sweethearts they were so tender and attentive—and Miss Martineau tells the same story with the additional particulars of a near neighbor—how she would miss him and trot out to find him—find him perhaps asleep in the sun run for his hat to shade his face, tend him and watch him and so it was that when he died they dug his grave deep enough for both and when she died they were one in the dust as they were one in heaven and had been on earth for over forty years. The world came to him at last but the wife at first. Worse and worse, Jeffrey said in his review when a new poem came out. Better and better," said the wife sitting on the green bank. The world might scoff the wife believed. She was no Sarah to laugh at the angel of the Lord. What wonder that they were sweethearts at three score-and ten?

It was so with the wife of Thomas Carlyle. The woman with the blood of old John Knox coursing through her heart upheld her husband through all weathers proud of his strength tender of his weakness never saying Thomas pray do write so the people can understand you! It's wild weired words, might puzzle her brain but they were the simplest Saxon to her heart and so when she died he had graven on her tomb. For forty years she was the true and loving helpmate of her husband and by act and word unweariedly forwarded him as none else could in all things worthy that he did or attempted. And this was what this man said of his wife and this wife of her husband when one was taken and the other left and their prayer had been fully answered in a beautiful old age.

Now this is a prayer we can all put up to God on our wedding-day, or if we will, on any day and every day after and find the spirit of the answer in the spirit of the cry. Is there danger that we shall make it impossible for Heaven to hear us in the tale of the year because we are using them up as the prodigal used up his fortune? We can guard against that. Is there danger that while we may grow old together in years there may be such a growing difference of spirit and purpose that at three-score-and-ten we may merely be two old people who may find each other out, but only to find it is all a mistake? We can guard against that. For where this safeguard to our inner life, and for that matter our outer life, also is needed the answer to our prayer comes in the true asking. No man and woman ever cried out to God with their whole heart fervently "Mercifully ordain that we may grow old together" who did not find well springs in their dryest desert, gleams of sunshine stealing into their darkest shadows, an arm of power for their most appalling steeps, and sunny resting-places all the way.

CONTINUAL

MAKES IT DOUBLY SURE.

PROOF AFTER PROOF.

From the Maritime Sentinel

AMHERST, Nova Scotia, Jan 28 1875

We would call the attention of our readers to the advertised in another column. We do this having experience in the matter. Being slightly skeptical as to the results promised, we purchased a bottle of the cure for a friend of ours, who was much troubled in the shoulders and hands. Hardly three months have elapsed, after using a single bottle, and she has not had a recurrence of rheumatic attack although previously she suffered with it almost constantly.

We scarcely could hope her to be cured from using only one bottle, but it has convinced us that it is a sovereign remedy. We believe a couple of bottles more will effect a permanent cure, and would urge our readers to give it a trial also.

J B WOODLAND Editor

All Who Have Used It Will Believe This.

PORTLAND Nov 14 1875

Prof Alphonse Hiller

Dear Sir—I wish to add my testimony to the efficacy of the valuable medicine called the having been under treatment of it for a few days. I think it is truly wonderful the effect it has had in so short a time upon myself. I would recommend it to all who are suffering from rheumatism. I have an abiding faith that the medicine will do all it is recommended to do.

Diamond Rheumatic Cure,

Thankfully yours,

MISS S I WATERMAN

Cumberland Street

This medicine is prepared by a careful, experienced and conscientious physician in obedience to the desire of numberless friends in the trade and among the people. Every bottle is warranted to contain the full strength of the medicine in its highest state of purity and development and is super or to any medicine ever compounded for this terrible complaint.

In simple cases sometimes one or two doses suffice. In the most chronic cases it is sure to give way by the use of four or five bottles. By this efficient and simple remedy, hundreds of dollars are saved to those who can least afford to throw it away, as surely it is by the purchase of useless prescriptions.

The Diamond Rheumatic Cure is for sale at all druggists' throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the wholesale druggists in Boston, Worcester, Portland Bangor and other places.

AMERICAN AND FOREIGN PATENTS

R. H. EDDY.

Solicitor of Patents.

For Inventions, Trade Marks and Designs,

No. 76 State St, opposite Kilby St., Boston

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States also in Great Britain, France, and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents executed on reasonable terms, with despatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent, and the usual great delay there are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Com'r of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE

Late Commissioner of Patents."

MR R H EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

Three Points for Consideration.

During the past five years the VEGETINE has been steadily working itself into public favor, and those who were at first most incredulous in regard to its merits are now its most ardent friends and supporters.

There are three essential causes for those having such a horror of patent medicines, changing their opinion and lending their influence toward the advancement of VEGETINE. 1st. It is an honestly prepared medicine from barks, roots and herbs. 2d. It honestly accomplishes all that is claimed for it, without leaving any bad effects in the system. 3d. It presents honest vouchers in testimonials from honest, well-known citizens, whose signatures are a sufficient guarantee to their earnestness in the matter. Taking into consideration the vast quantity of medicine brought conspicuously before the public through the flaming advertisements in the newspaper columns, with no proof of merit or genuine vouchers of what it has done, we should be pardoned for manifesting a small degree of pride in presenting the following testimonial from Rev J S. DICKERSON, D D, the popular and eloquent pastor of the South Baptist Church Boston

The Tired Body Sues for Sleep.

BOSTON, March 16, 1874.

H R STEVENS, Esq

Dear Sir—It is as much from a sense of duty as of gratitude that I write to say that your VEGETINE—even if it is a patent medicine—has been of great help to me when nothing else seemed to avail which I could safely use. Either excessive mental work or unusual care brings upon me a nervous exhaustion that desperately needs sleep, but as desperately defies it. Night after night the poor, tired body sues for sleep until the day-dawn is welcomed back, and we begin our work tired out with an almost fruitless chase after rest. Now I have found that a single VEGETINE taken just before I retire gives me sweet and immediate sleep, and without any of the evil effects of the usual narcotics. I think two things would tend to make brain-workers sleep. 1st. A little less work. 2d. A little more VEGETINE. This prescription has helped me.

Now I have a particular horror of "patent medicine," but I have a greater horror of being afraid to tell the straight out truth. The VEGETINE has helped me and I own it up

Yours, &c., J S. DICKERSON

Valuable Evidence.

The following unsolicited testimonial from Rev O T WALKER D.D formerly pastor of Bowdoin Square Church and at present settled in Providence, R. I., must be esteemed as reliable evidence.

No one should fail to observe that this testimonial is the result of two years experience with the use of VEGETINE in the Rev Mr Walker's family, who now pronounce it invaluable.

PROVIDENCE R. I., 164 Transit street

H R STEVENS, ESQ

I feel bound to express with my signature the high value I place upon your VEGETINE. My family have used it for the last two years. In nervous debility it is invaluable, and I recommend it to all who may need an invigorating renovating tonic.

O T WALKER,

Formerly Pastor of Bowdoin Sq Church Boston

The Best Evidence.

The following letter from Rev E S BEST, pastor M E Church, Natick, Mass. will be read with interest by many physicians. Also those suffering from the same disease as afflicted the son of the Rev E S. Best. No person can doubt this testimony and there is no doubt about the curative powers of VEGETINE

NATICK, Mass, Jan 1, 1874

MR H R. STEVENS

Dear Sir—We have good reason for regarding your VEGETINE a medicine of the greatest value. We feel assured that it has been the means of saving our son's life. He is now seventeen years of age, for the last two years he has suffered from necrosis of his leg, caused by scrofulous affection, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A council of able physicians could give us but the faintest hope of his ever rallying, two of the number declaring that he was beyond the reach of human remedies that even amputation could not save him, as he had not vigor enough to endure the operation. Just then we commenced giving him Vegetine, and from that time to the present he has been continually improving. He has lately resumed his studies thrown away crutches and cane, and walks about cheerfully and strong.

Though there is still some discharge from the opening where the limb was lanced, we have the fullest confidence that in a little time he will be perfectly cured.

He has taken about three dozen bottles of Vegetine, but lately uses but little as he declares that he is too well to be taking medicine. Respectfully yours E S BEST MRS L C F BEST

H R STEVENS ESQ

Dear Sir—From personal benefit received by its use as well as from personal knowledge of those whose cures thereby have seemed almost miraculous I can most heartily and sincerely recommend the Vegetine for the complaints for which it is claimed to cure. THE NEW REMINGTON

SHUTTLE SEWING MACHINES,

Manufactured at the Celebrated REMINGTON ARMORY, Ilion, N. Y., are the Latest and Best.

The REMINGTON SEWING MACHINES are rapidly becoming general favorites, wherever introduced. While it is not our purpose to underrate any other machine, we do claim that the REMINGTON is so complete as to overcome all the principal objections made against Shuttle Sewing Machines. That which has long been sought after by probably every Sewing Machine Company, has been obtained in the REMINGTON, namely An even, round, bird's-eye stitch on all kinds of goods, coarse or fine, without the use of COG-WHEEL GEARS, ROTARY CAMS, or LEVERS, and smoothness, ease, and silence in working. Its perfection of Design and Manufacture makes it the simplest, the most speedy, the most durable in the market.

Manufacturers of Clothing, Shoes, etc., etc., will find just what they want in our No. 2 Machine, which is superior to all others.

All kinds of second hand Machines exchanged and sold on time, on the most reasonable terms. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed.

To the Honorable the Justices of our Supreme Judicial Court next to be holden at Bangor within and for the County of Penobscot, on the first Tuesday of October, A. D. 1875.

Frances M. Smith, of Bangor, in said County respectfully libels and gives this Honorable Court to be informed that she was lawfully married to Thomas Smith of said Bangor, on the 10th day of October, A D 1872, and that your libellant, since their intermarriage, has always behaved herself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate wife towards the said Thomas Smith, but that the said Thomas Smith, wholly regardless of his marriage covenant and duty, has treated her in a most cruel and unkind manner, refusing to provide either food, clothing or shelter for her, and that he has become a common and notorious drunkard, and that it is not safe or proper for her to live with him.

Wherefore, inasmuch as it would be reasonable and proper, conducive to domestic harmony, and consistent with the peace and morality of society, your libellant prays this Honorable Court to decree a divorce from the bonds of matrimony, and that the Court will allow her such alimony as they deem reasonable and proper

FRANCES M. SMITH

Respectfully libels and represents Elizabeth H Patten, of Hermon, in said County, that she was lawfully married to Luther K. Patten, then of said Hermon, and now beyond the limits of this State, at Hermon, by James Patten, Esq., on the 20th day of February, A D 1859, and thereafterwards your Libelant and the said Luther K. Patten lived together as husband and wife in this State, to wit. At said Hermon, that your Libelant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said Luther K Patten being wholly regardless of the same, at said Hermon on or about the 10th day of May, A. D 1866, deserted your libelant, and has not lived or cohabited with her or contributed to her support since that time. She further alleges, that he then went to Auburn in this State, and remained there until about October, 1869, when he went to Chicago, Ill., as she was informed, that she has exercised due diligence to learn where he now is, but his residence is not known to said Libelant, and cannot be ascertained.

Wherefore your Libelant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your Libelant, and the said Luther K Patten, deeming it reasonable and proper, conducive to domestic harmony and consistent with the peace and morality of society

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning and evening in season for important mails—the down town boxes fifteen and the up town boxes thirty minutes before closing mails at the office.

Holidays the Carrier's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 8½ to 9½ A. M., and from 7½ to 8¼ P. M. Sundays from 8½ to 9½ A. M.

Any irregularities in the Carriers' department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window,) when ordered in lots of not less than 500

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days, or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

The public are earnestly recommended to procure Stamped envelopes with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus endorsed, if not delivered to the person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

First class envelopes of above furnished at $32 50 per thousand.

Stamps cut from Stamped Envelopes cannot be used to prepay postage. The use of such stamps is punishable by a fine of fifty dollars.

Stamped Envelopes, spoiled in directing, are redeemed at this office.

DOMESTIC POSTAGE.

All Letters must be Prepaid.—Letters for the Mails in the United States, three cents the half ounce or single rate. City letters, two cents half ounce or single rate.

NEWSPAPERS.

After January 1st, 1875, all regular newspapers must be prepaid at the office of publication, at the rate of two cents per pound for each issue on weekly papers or those published oftener than once a week. less frequently than once a week, three cents. The same law applies to dealers.

County papers free, except to letter carrier offices, to papers coming to the office, if published in County, are subject to postage. Daily papers published in County, if delivered by carrier, one cent each, to be prepaid by stamps.

Postage to Canada.—Same as in the States on letters and papers, pre-payment compulsory; merchandise limited to 8 oz., postage 10 cents.

TRANSIENT PRINTED MATTER AND BOOKS AND MERCHANDISE.

One cent an ounce or fraction, weight limited to four pounds. Liquids, and anything that will injure mail excluded. All matter of this class must be wrapped, so as to be examined, without destroying wrappers.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

All letters remaining in the office are advertised on Monday of each week. If not claimed in one month thereafter, they are then forwarded to Washington.

MONEY ORDERS.

Especial attention is called to the Money Order system, as a safe and cheap method of transmitting small sums through the mails. Orders are issued in sums of not more than fifty dollars. Larger amounts can be transmitted to the same person, at the same time, by additional orders
